Tell us about yourself.

I'm a second-year internal medicine resident at Mayo Clinic-Rochester who will be going into pulmonary-critical care medicine. I'm from Kansas City and went to the University of Kansas for my undergraduate and medical studies - go Jayhawks!

Tell us about your academic work.

My academic research interests include interstitial lung diseases and pulmonary function testing. I also have an interest in medical education specifically through the use of animations and videos to describe respiratory and critical care physiology.

What are your passions in life?

I have a passion for creative outlets. I love acrylic painting, animating, writing, and cooking. I am also an avid runner and have taken up indoor rock climbing.

Where do you see yourself in 5 years?

I see myself in academia involved in research and teaching residents and medical students. I also hope to serve on a hospital's ethics committee.
